WESTERN ASSOCIATION
OF WOMEN HISTORIANS

50th Anniversary Conference

PORTLAND, OREGON
HILTON PORTLAND DOWNTOWN
APRIL 25-27, 2019

Program Notes

Welcome to the Western Association of Women Historians' annual meeting and 50th Anniversary celebration! This conference promises to be especially full and robust, featuring more than three dozen panels, roundtables, and posters, and drawing participants from across the United States and Canada.

As you peruse the program, you will notice some new icons. The  icon denotes programming and events designed to celebrate or reflect on our 50-year anniversary. In addition to programming related to this milestone, volunteers will be on hand during lunch breaks to collect reflections and oral histories of our members—both new and lifelong. Also available is a “Presidential Publications” display, highlighting the significant scholarly contributions of the organization’s leadership. Please look for this display next to the book exhibit in Skyline 3. Finally, Saturday night’s sold-out dinner will provide us with an opportunity to celebrate WAWH’s “Fifty Years of Fabulous.” I look forward to seeing many of you there!

I hope you will also tune into a recently-recorded episode of Beyond Footnotes, a history podcast sponsored by Portland State University’s Department of History. This episode features our own Carol Gold and Peggy Renner, reflecting on WAWH’s history. The episode is available on Soundcloud (<https://soundcloud.com/beyondfootnotes>). I hope you will take a moment to listen in!

WAWH welcomes participants to make use of social media during the conference. We are on Facebook as Western Association of Women Historians. WAWH’s Twitter handle is @WAWHTweets; tweets from this year’s conference can be designated using #WAWH2019.

While some panelists are eager to share on social media, others prefer that their content not be tweeted. Please be mindful of these preferences.

Check the program for the “Do not tweet” icon.

When in doubt, ask before you tweet.

Finally, WAWH strives to be a welcoming and inclusive organization. If you are a WAWH regular, please use coffee breaks, social events, and meals to reach out to new members. If you are new to WAWH and hope to make connections, this is a welcoming group. We encourage attendees who wish to make new connections or learn more about WAWH to look for past and current WAWH board members, who will be wearing gold or green name badge ribbons.

Thank you for being here, and enjoy the conference!

Graduate Study in History at Washington State University

The WSU Department of History's graduate programs prepare our students for a changing job market. We research and teach on the environment, labor, gender, sexuality, race, religion, urban and rural places, and borderlands. We work on museum exhibits, historic surveys, digital archives, oral histories, and public programs. WSU's graduate program offers seminars and field courses, and our students regularly participate in regional and national conferences. Our students have gone on to faculty positions across the country and work as public historians at places ranging from the National Park Service to local historical societies. We work with faculty in departments and centers across our campuses and with Manuscripts, Archives, and Special Collections (MASC) at the WSU Library. Explore our programs at <https://history.wsu.edu/graduate-studies/>
